Please join us at Rutgers University-Newark for a celebration of Spanish, Portuguese, and Latinx poetry and culture!

Our day-long event for NJ high school students will focus on Afro-Latinidades, with readings by New Jersey poets, presentations by humanities scholars and practitioners, and opportunities for high-school attendees to recite poetry and share original work. We will also have opportunities to tour campus.

A detailed schedule and more information, including a list of poetry for recitation and guidelines for the student-written monologues or poetry for live performance, will be sent out to registered participants in January 2024.
