

Daniel M. Siegel, MD, is Clinical Professor of Dermatology at SUNY Downstate in Brooklyn, New York and is a former President and honorary member of the American Academy of Dermatology (AAD). A graduate of Albany Medical College in New York, his residency in dermatology at Parkland Memorial Hospital in Dallas, Texas was followed by a fellowship in Mohs Micrographic Surgery and Dermatologic Surgery at Baylor College of Medicine in Houston, Texas. He also earned a Master of Science degree in management and policy from the W. Averell Harriman School for Management and Policy, State University of New York at Stony Brook.

Dr. Siegel currently serves as a member of the board of directors of the International League of Dermatologic Societies. He is a diplomate of the American Board of Dermatology and a fellow of many societies, and has served or serves on the board of directors for many of these societies. Dr. Siegel is a founding board member of debRA International. He is one of the 20 esteemed active members of the New York Dermatological Society. Dr. Siegel has published over 150 articles and book chapters in major medical journals and textbooks. He is a reviewer, editor, or advisor for many dermatology journals. His expertise extends to a variety of area outside of "routine" dermatology including among many cutting-edge computer technology and botany. He also is an active participant representing AAD in the American Medical Association Specialty Society RVS Update Committee process.