02:02:59 ELIZABETH: and it's a great smile Ben

02:04:47 anne leader: Ben, I appreciate that perception of news bites - kind of undigested content - and on Google it is as bad if not worse - when the first 10 links have identical content - and people repeat it and believe it because they have heard it so much. How fast the protests which were basically peaceful were spoken of mostly in terms of the violence - perpetrated by who knows whom (or do we know)

02:09:59 Penny Dell: i wondered if Judy's question might have referred to the case of Dana SCHUTZ

02:11:12 Sherrill Cohen: I don't see Nell's link to her article in the Chat box, and I'd like to read that article. Do others see it?

02:12:03 Sue Goldberg: I don't see it either. Could someone put it up.

02:12:18 Eileen Ferara: Can Nell's article be reposted?

02:12:37 ELIZABETH: <https://www.nytimes.com/2020/11/05/opinion/election-voting-violence.html?searchResultPosition=1>

02:13:31 anne leader: I have to disagree with Michael - you have to speak the outrage before "all lives matter" isn't dismissive. That is the power of Ben's and NEll's work - the simple statement of truth

02:13:34 Donna Gustafson: wonderful panel of artists! thank you!

02:13:58 anne leader: We white people have no idea unless we have also been part of a "less than" group.

02:14:10 Amanda Thackray: Thank you all for your presentations! Wonderful panel! Thanks Judy!

02:14:16 Penny Dell: Terrific panel!

02:14:24 Ben Blount: Thank you all for joining us!

02:14:30 Eileen Ferara: Thank you!

02:14:37 Sue Goldberg: Thanks to everyone!

02:14:57 Erin Mickelson: Thank you!

02:15:47 Colleen Formigan: Fabulous presentations! Thank you!

02:16:06 Michael Joseph: I didn't mean that black live matter was dismissive. I meant it was misperceived as dismissive I'm sorry I wasn't clearer.

02:16:14 susannah: Thank you!

02:16:42 Michael Joseph: I meant polarized society distorts communication

02:16:51 Michael Joseph: We need to deconstruct polarities.

02:17:37 marilynrosenberg: Please give us the address of the virtual exhibit again .
