A CONFERENCE IN CELEBRATION
OF 150 YEARS OF FRIENDSHIP
BETWEEN RUTGERS AND JAPAN

INTRODUCTION

In 1867 Taro Kusakabe (1845-70), a young samurai from Fukui, Japan, began studying at Rutgers College. Several years later, his former tutor and Rutgers alumnus William Elliot Griffis (1843-1928) left for Japan to teach, first in Fukui and later in Tokyo. The year 2020 marks the 150th anniversary of two landmark events in the history of the Rutgers-Japan relationship: the untimely death of Kusakabe only months before his graduation and his friend Griffis's departure to Japan. This conference is held to commemorate and celebrate the special friendship between Rutgers and Japan.

SPEAKER BIOS:

Hamish Ion Emeritus Professor, History Department, Royal Military College of Canada
Specialist on modern Japanese history and a Co-operating Research Fellow at the Center for Christian Studies, Meiji Gakuin University, Tokyo. He has done extensive research on missionaries and oyatoi and has written on Edward Clark and William Griffis, both Rutgers alumni and two of the earliest oyatoi invited to teach in Japan.
Selected works:

- "James Curtis Hepburn and the Translation of the New Testament into Japanese" in Social Sciences and Missions 27 (2014): 56-85.
- American Missionaries, Christian Oyatoi, and Japan, 1859-73 (UBC Press, 2010).

John Van Sant, Associate Professor, Department of History, University of Alabama at Birmingham

Specialist on late Tokugawa/early Meiji Japan, with an emphasis on the political, ideological and cultural changes in Japan during the nineteenth century. He has written a book on Japanese "pioneers" to America, of which a chapter is dedicated to Japanese students at Rutgers.

Selected works:

- Mori Arinori's Life and Resources in America (Lexington Books, 2004)
- Pacific Pioneers: Japanese Journeys to America and Hawaii, 1850-1880 (University of Illinois Press, 2000).

Rui Kohiyama Professor, Department of International Relations, Division of Global Social Sciences, School of Arts and Sciences, Tokyo Woman's Christian University
Specialist on the women's foreign mission movement in North America and female missionaries' work in Meiji Japan. She is currently working on early history of Ferris University, which was founded by a female missionary from the Dutch Reformed Church and later headed by Rutgers alumni.

Selected works:

- The Gospel of Empire: Lucy Peabody and the American Foreign Mission Enterprise (University of Tokyo Press, 2019)
- Christianity and the Modern Woman in East Asia (Brill, 2018)
