

The 44th Annual Marion Thompson Wright Lecture Series

La Fuerza de las Voces Negras: Afrolatinidades en las Americas

The Power of Black Voices: Afro-Latin Identities in the Americas

Saturday, February 17, 2024
9:30a.m. - 3:30p.m.

The Paul Robeson Campus Center
Rutgers, the State University of New Jersey
350 Martin Luther King Jr. Blvd.,
Newark, NJ 07102

SPEAKERS:

Ariana Curtis: First curator of Latinx Studies at the Smithsonian National Museum of African American History and Culture (NMAAHC)

Tanya Kateri Hernandez: The Archibald R. Murray Professor of Law at Fordham University School of Law, author and Fulbright Scholar

Nodia Mena: Co-founder of the Afro-Latin American/Latinx Studies Project in the African-American and African Diaspora Studies Program at UNC Greensboro

Lorgia García Peña: Writer, activist and scholar in Black Latinx Studies, co-founder of Freedom University in Georgia

Register
Here

The Marion Thompson Wright Lecture Series is made possible by funds and support from Rutgers University–Newark; Prudential; the New Jersey Historical Commission, Mellon Foundation, and L+M Development Partners. Presented by the Clement A. Price Institute; The Federated Department of History Rutgers University–Newark/ New Jersey Institute of Technology; and the Department of Africana Studies.

Image Credit: N. Justine Hunter | Design: O2 Advertising, Belleville, NJ

More information at ethnicity.rutgers.edu

PriceInstitute

Price_Institute

PriceInstitute